Kitchen Tile Backsplash Ideas

to Show Off
Your Style

You've settled on the right appliances, cabinetry, and color palette. What's left to choose when redoing your kitchen? Don't forget about the backsplash, which is equally important to your design scheme. It's a moment to experiment with different types of tiles, eye-catching patterns, and sophisticated hues. Plus, it's the perfect opportunity to showcase your trendy design style, regardless of where you might fall on the cooking spectrum.

BLACK, WHITE, AND ICY BLUE

The white-tiled backsplash in this maximalist California home designed by Mary McDonald is merely a backdrop for the glam striped marble floors, gold-detailed fixtures, and chic blue cabinets.

MOSAIC PATTERNED TILE

The backsplash tiles by Studium in this New Jersey family home designed by Cullman & Kravis provide a neutral ground for the pops of yellow throughout the room.

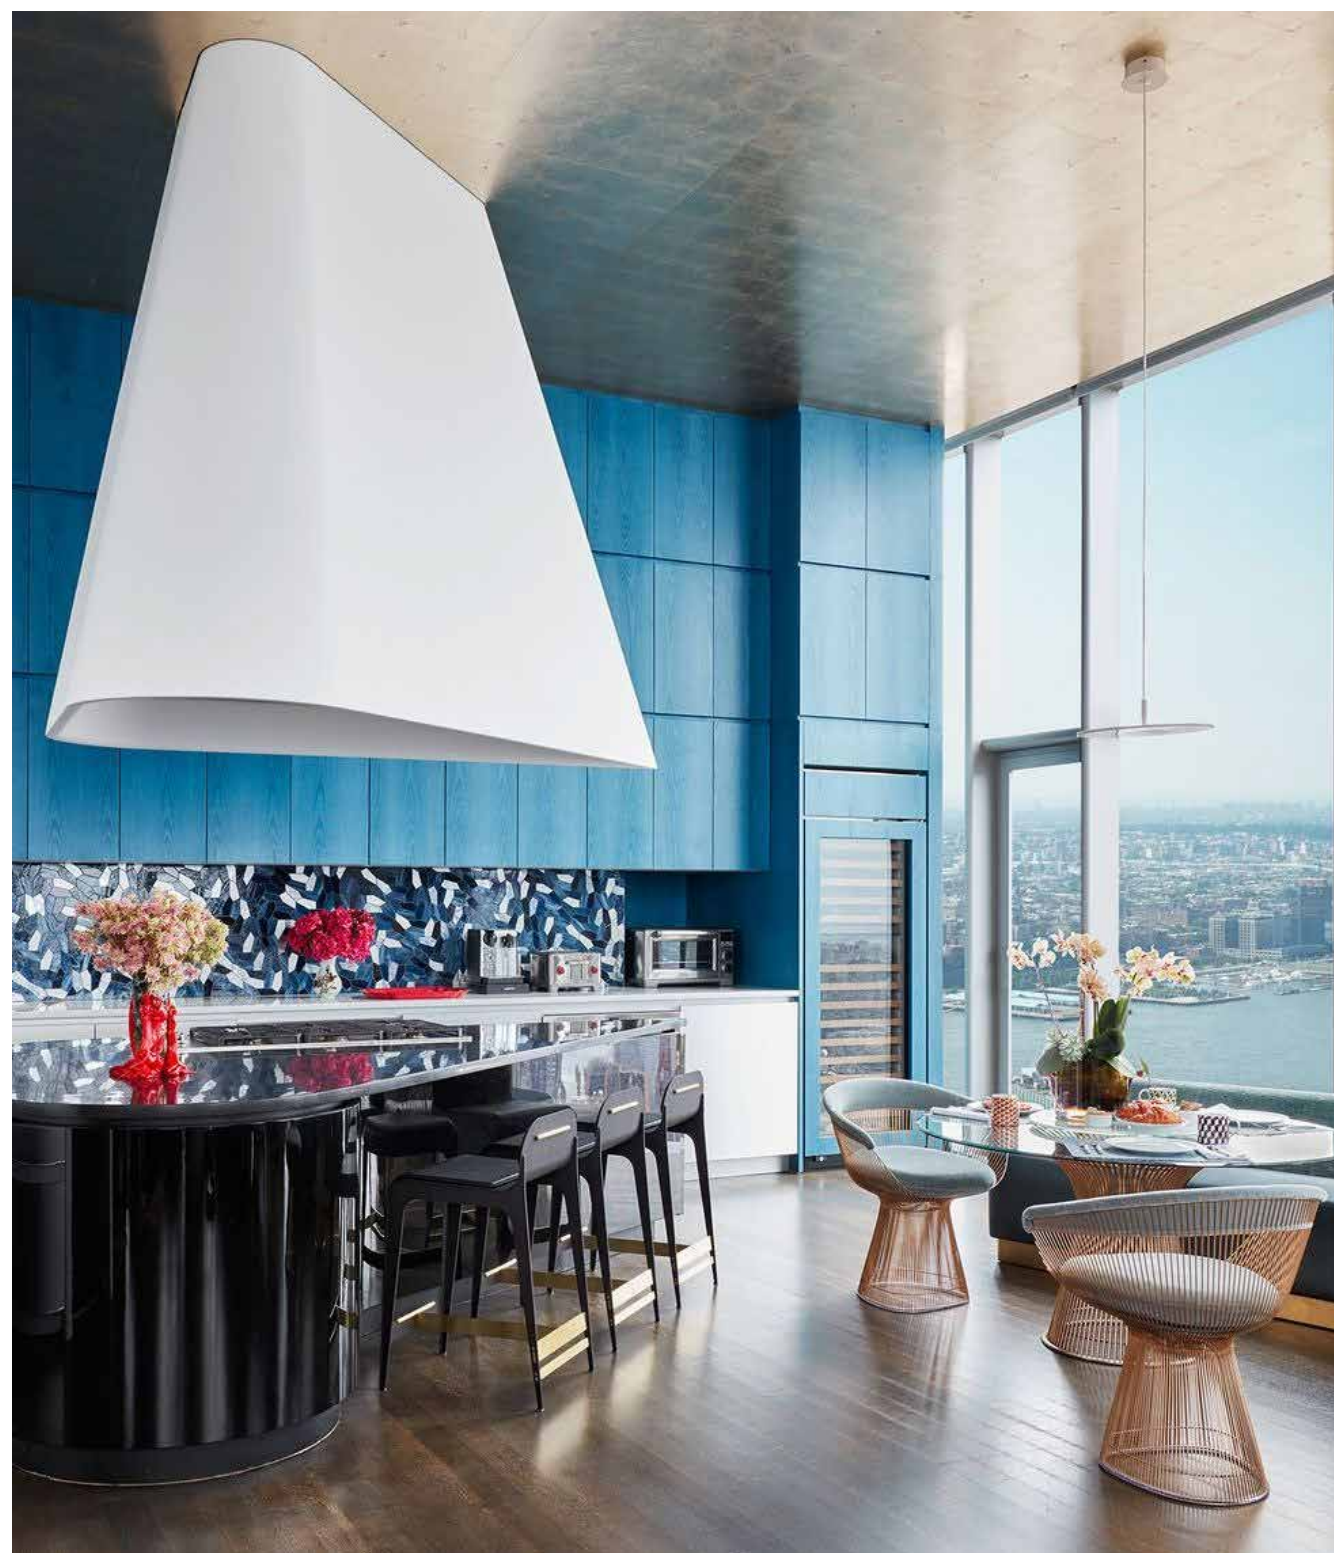

MOROCCAN TILE

Martyn Lawrence Bullard's West Hollywood home—a Moroccan-meets-midcentury oasis—showcases his passion for crafting global-inspired interiors. Green accents, including a backsplash with Moroccan from Zellij Gallery, complete the standout kitchen.

SHADES OF GREEN

Designer Christine Markatos Lowe loves nothing more than a kitchen with a statement backsplash, like this design boasting a range of green hues. “A backsplash is the best place to add a pop of color into a kitchen design without having to do a full kitchen renovation,” she says.

MOSAIC TILE

A backsplash featuring mosaic tile from Ann Sacks steals the show in a Richard Mishaan-designed kitchen in a TriBeCa building. The space also includes a custom island, range, and hood by Herzog & de Meuron. The barstools are by Gabriel Scott and the cabinetry is custom.

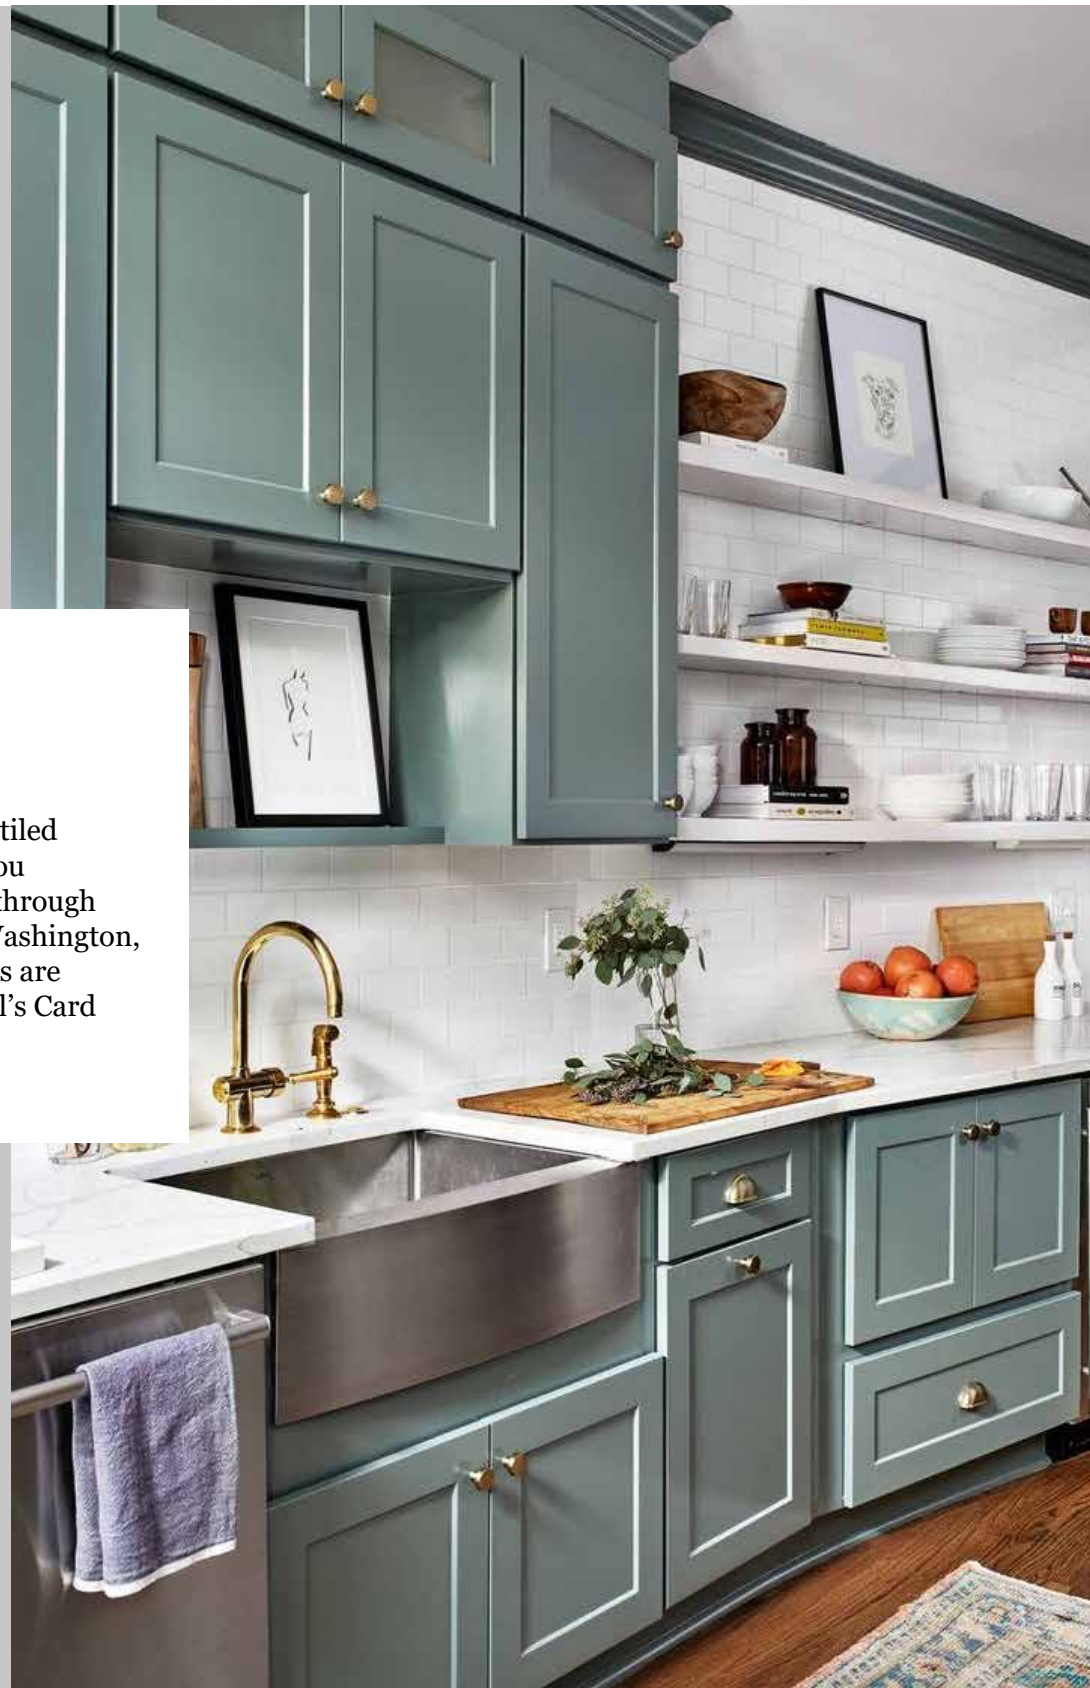

TILED BACKSPLASH, COUNTERTOPS, AND SHELVES

Don't just stop at your backsplash when applying tiles. Continue it onto your countertops and shelves, like in hotelier Carlos Couturier's kitchen—clad in Portuguese tiles—in his home on the Pacific Coast of Mexico, designed by LeCoadic-Scotto.

TEAL AND WHITE

When you have a white-tiled backsplash, that gives you room for color to shine through elsewhere, like in this Washington, D.C., home. The cabinets are painted in Farrow & Ball's Card Room Green.

SQUARE TILES

A high-gloss tiled backsplash with squares set on the diagonal complements the deep green color palette of the kitchen in this Paris apartment designed by Lorenzo Castillo.

GLASS TILES

Pale gray glass tiles sheathe the walls of this open kitchen in interior designer Becky Shea's Long Island City, New York, home.

SICILIAN MAJOLICA TILE

The antique Sicilian majolica tiles blend in perfectly with this kitchen—once a cave in Sicily that dates to circa 600 B.C.—belonging to Bill Brockschmidt of Brockschmidt & Coleman and his husband, Richard Dragisic.

HIGH SHEEN

The backsplash and wall tiles by Mosaic House give an illuminating sheen to the kitchen of Patricia Greene Isen's Upper East Side home.

WHITE WITH HERMÈS ORANGE

In a Hearst family estate in New York's Hudson Valley, the kitchen's white-tiled backsplash recedes against the Viking appliances in a vibrant custom Hermès orange.

A GLOSSY MOSAIC

A mosaic backsplash with a vine motif from DiscoverTile shines in this New England home's kitchen designed by LDa Architecture & Interiors.

BLACK-AND-WHITE PATTERNED TILES

Antique majolica tiles cover the walls of the kitchen in this Milan townhouse designed by Studio Peregalli.

GO UP THE WALL

Ceramic tiles cover an entire wall of this light-filled kitchen in a Marin County, California, cottage designed by Nicole Hollis.

WHITE SUBWAY- TILED WALLS

Subway tiles envelop the whole of this kitchen in an apartment on Manhattan's Upper East Side designed by Tom Scheerer and architect Gil P. Schafer—from the backsplash to the walls.

LONG, NARROW TILES

In the Los Angeles home of Avengers director Joe Russo, interior designer Deirdre Doherty opted for long, skinny tiles for the backsplash of this bold kitchen.

NEUTRAL PATTERN

In a Lake Tahoe retreat designed by Palmer Weiss, the neutral kitchen's backsplash tile by Exquisite Surfaces serves as a point of interest. The countertop is by Caesarstone, the ceiling beams are reclaimed barnwood, the flooring is stained white oak, and the artwork was painted by the owners' young daughter.

CLASSIC MARBLE TILE

A classic backsplash made of Carrara marble tiles by Walker Zanger adds balance to a powder blue kitchen in a Pacific Palisades, California, home belonging to designer Alison Palevsky and her husband, Alexander. The wooden bar stools are from Organic Modernism, the kitchen stove is by Viking, and the 1920s pendants are from Thanks for the Memories.

MOROCCAN TILES

In a suburban Chicago home by PROJECT Interiors, Moroccan tiles in a custom size from Ann Sacks add elegance to a warm gray kitchen. A cantilevered island with Carrara countertops maximizes space.

ONYX TILES

A classic onyx backsplash and custom cabinetry complete an all-white modern chef's kitchen design by Jeanne Finnerty.

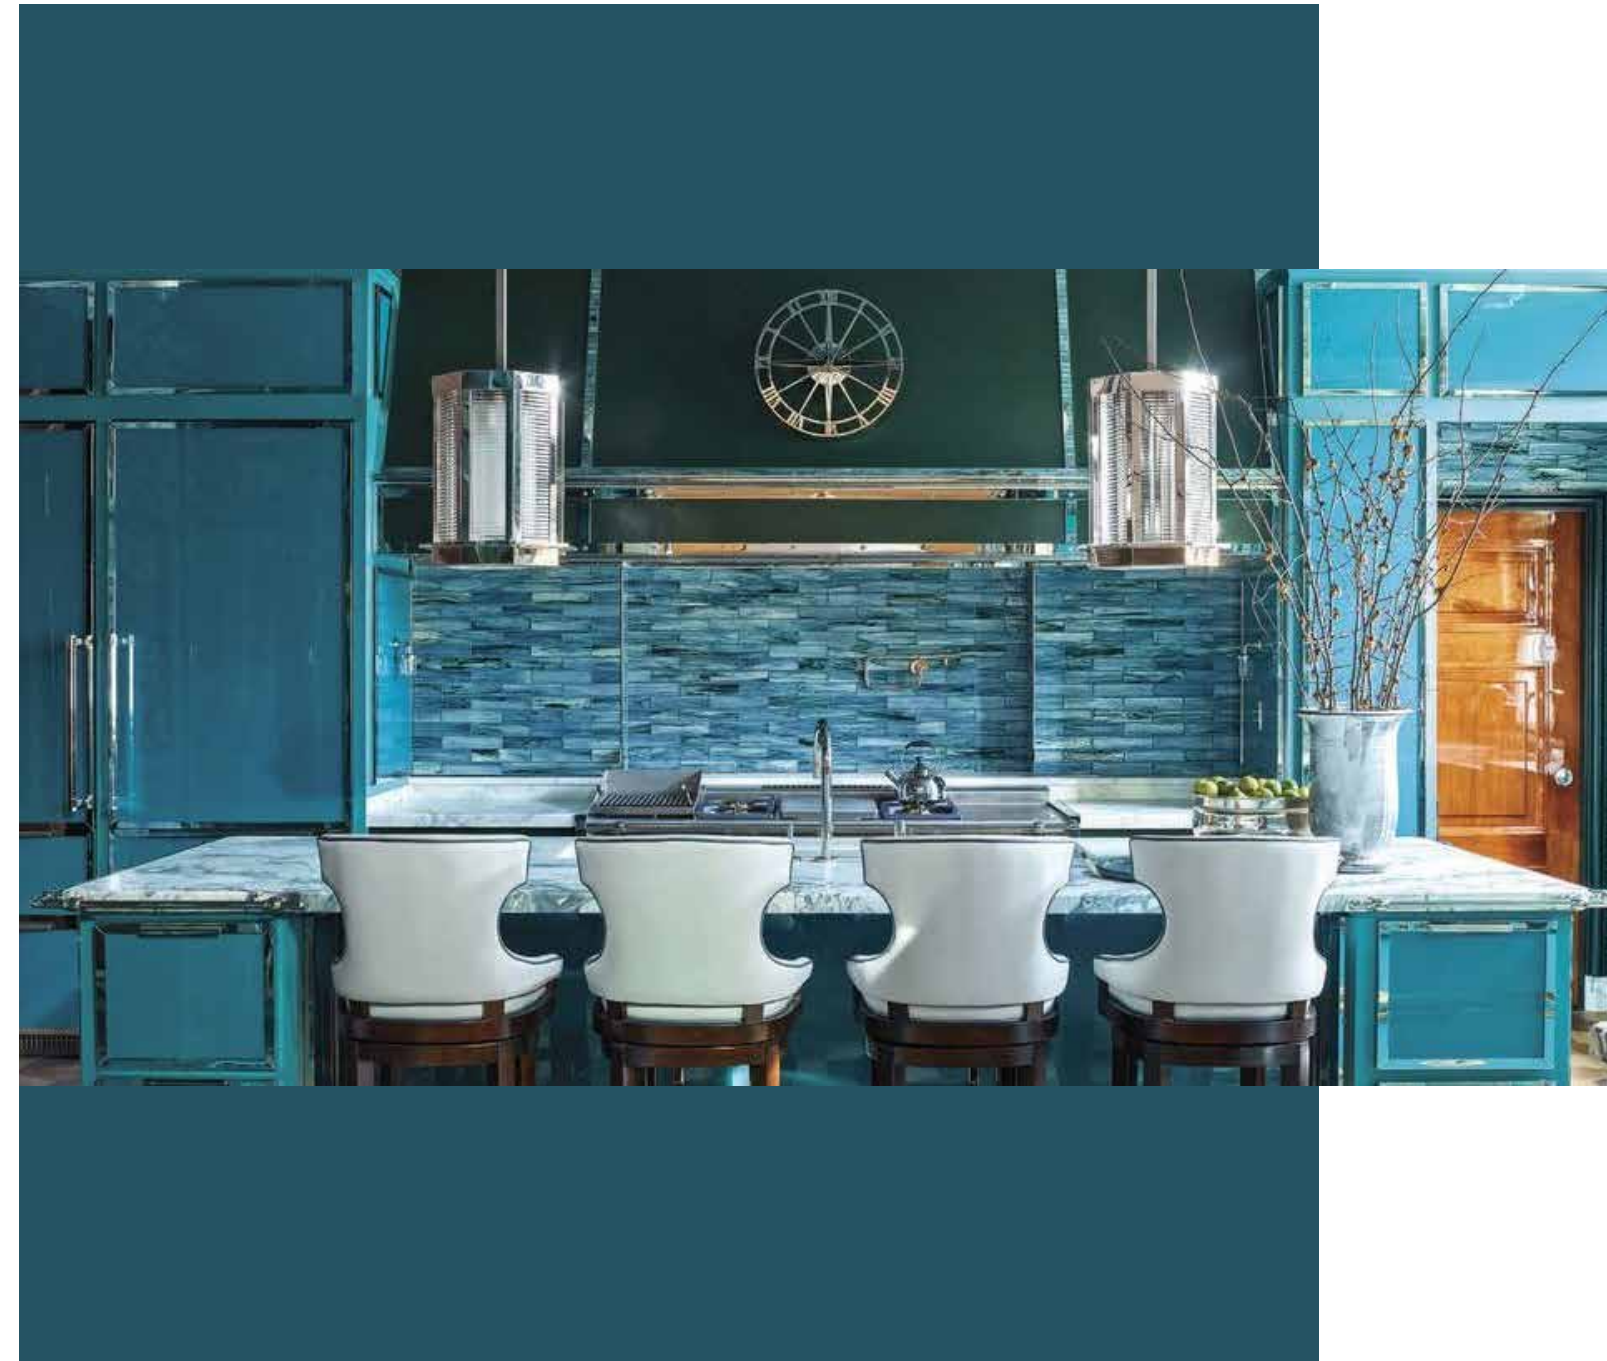

OFF-WHITE PORTUGUESE TILES

Off-white 19th-century Portuguese tiles add character to a London kitchen. The island is made from a 19th-century cast-iron stove and topped with Carrara marble, and the pendant light is early-20th-century French.

TILES FOR A NEUTRAL KITCHEN

Sometimes simple white squares are all you need—these tiles blend seamlessly into an industrial New York loft's kitchen designed by Becky Shea.

BOLD BLUES

The polished nickel, hardwood, and glass cabinetry and island are custom, and the range and hood are by Officine Gullo. Hanging from the ceiling are eight circa-1930 C.F. Otto Müller ceiling lights and a pendant designed by Gambrel for the Urban Electric Co.

SIMPLE WHITE TILE

A small galley-style kitchen in Monaco, France, features square white tiles that play off of the other geometric elements in the room. The small table and chairs are by Jeanneret, the oven, cooktop and hood are by Aster Cucine.

LIME GREEN AND WHITE

White tiled walls balance out vibrant kitchen cabinets, which are painted in Bright Lime by Benjamin Moore in this Manhattan kitchen. The countertops are stainless steel and the sink is by Franke.

CHEVRON TILES

This Mill Valley, California, kitchen features sleek chevron tiles in varying shades of gray from Artistic Tile.

WHITE, OFF-WHITE AND COPPER

The kitchen in this New York Hudson Valley home has a vent hood and wine refrigerator by GE Monogram, the mahogany dining chairs are from the 1940's and the copper cookware includes antique and vintage items.

ORIGINAL TILING

The homeowners kept the original tile backsplash and flooring in the kitchen of this Loire Valley home. English mahogany chairs and a stylish chandelier, which was found at a flea market, give the space a lived-in feel.

WHITE ON WHITE

This bright and airy kitchen in a cottage in Connecticut keeps it classic with wall tiles from Waterworks, a stainless steel stove by Viking, stools by York Street Studio and 1920s English pendants by BK Antiques.

PATTERNED TILES

Beautifully patterned tiles by Neisha Crosland cover the walls in this London townhouse kitchen and allow the cabinetry, painted in Pure Grey 6 by Papers and Paints, to pop. The pendant lights are by Serge Mouille and the floor is made of three types of limestone.

SUBWAY TILES

The bright white walls in this open New Jersey kitchen are covered in subway tiles by American Olean. The vintage pendants were found at a Paris flea market. The bistro chairs are by Maison Gatti, the refrigerator is by Sub-Zero and the range is by Wolf.

INDUSTRIAL- STYLE TILES

A modish New York kitchen integrates custom-made cabinetry and vintage hardware alongside large white tiles. The 1950s scones are by Gunnar Asplund, and the light fixtures are from the 1970s. The sink fittings are by Dornbracht.

SPANISH TILES

This open kitchen in Melbourne, Australia, features handmade Spanish tiles on its backsplash. The table is made of pepper granite, the pendant lights are by Produzione Privata, the stools are by Bassam Fellows and the oven is by Lacanche.

SILVER AND WHITE

Gray tiles blend in with the stainless steel appliances in this modern New York City kitchen decorated with touches of silver and white. The floors are lined with Corten steel tiles, the oven is by Wolf and the stools are from the 1940s.

Beautiful

Stone Villa on Capri

See how one architect reimagined a midcentury retreat for the owner of a legendary local restaurant.

Even in the dead of winter, summer blooms eternal on the island of Capri. As the year winds down, dense rosemary bushes carpet the precipitous hillsides, and orange trees groaning under the weight of ripe fruit perfume now tourist-barren streets. For an outsider, it may seem strange to spend other seasons in the spiritual home of Italian high summer, but for those lucky few locals who know the island's secrets, Capri is paradise anytime of year.

THE LIVING ROOM

Dell'Uva sketched the curved shape of the sofa on the floor and had it made in concrete by a local artisan, Costanzo Porta. The 1950s chairs are by MIM, the cocktail table and sconces are custom, the jute rug is by Sika Design, and the floors are hand-poured terrazzo.

THE DINING ROOM

A stonework wall is the backdrop for a 1970s Mario Ceroli table and vintage Luigi Caccia Dominioni chairs for Azucena. The Stilnovo pendant and 1960s Paolo Tilche lamp (right) are both vintage, a custom console is topped with 1940s Gio Ponti vases, and the artwork is by Marina Abramovic.

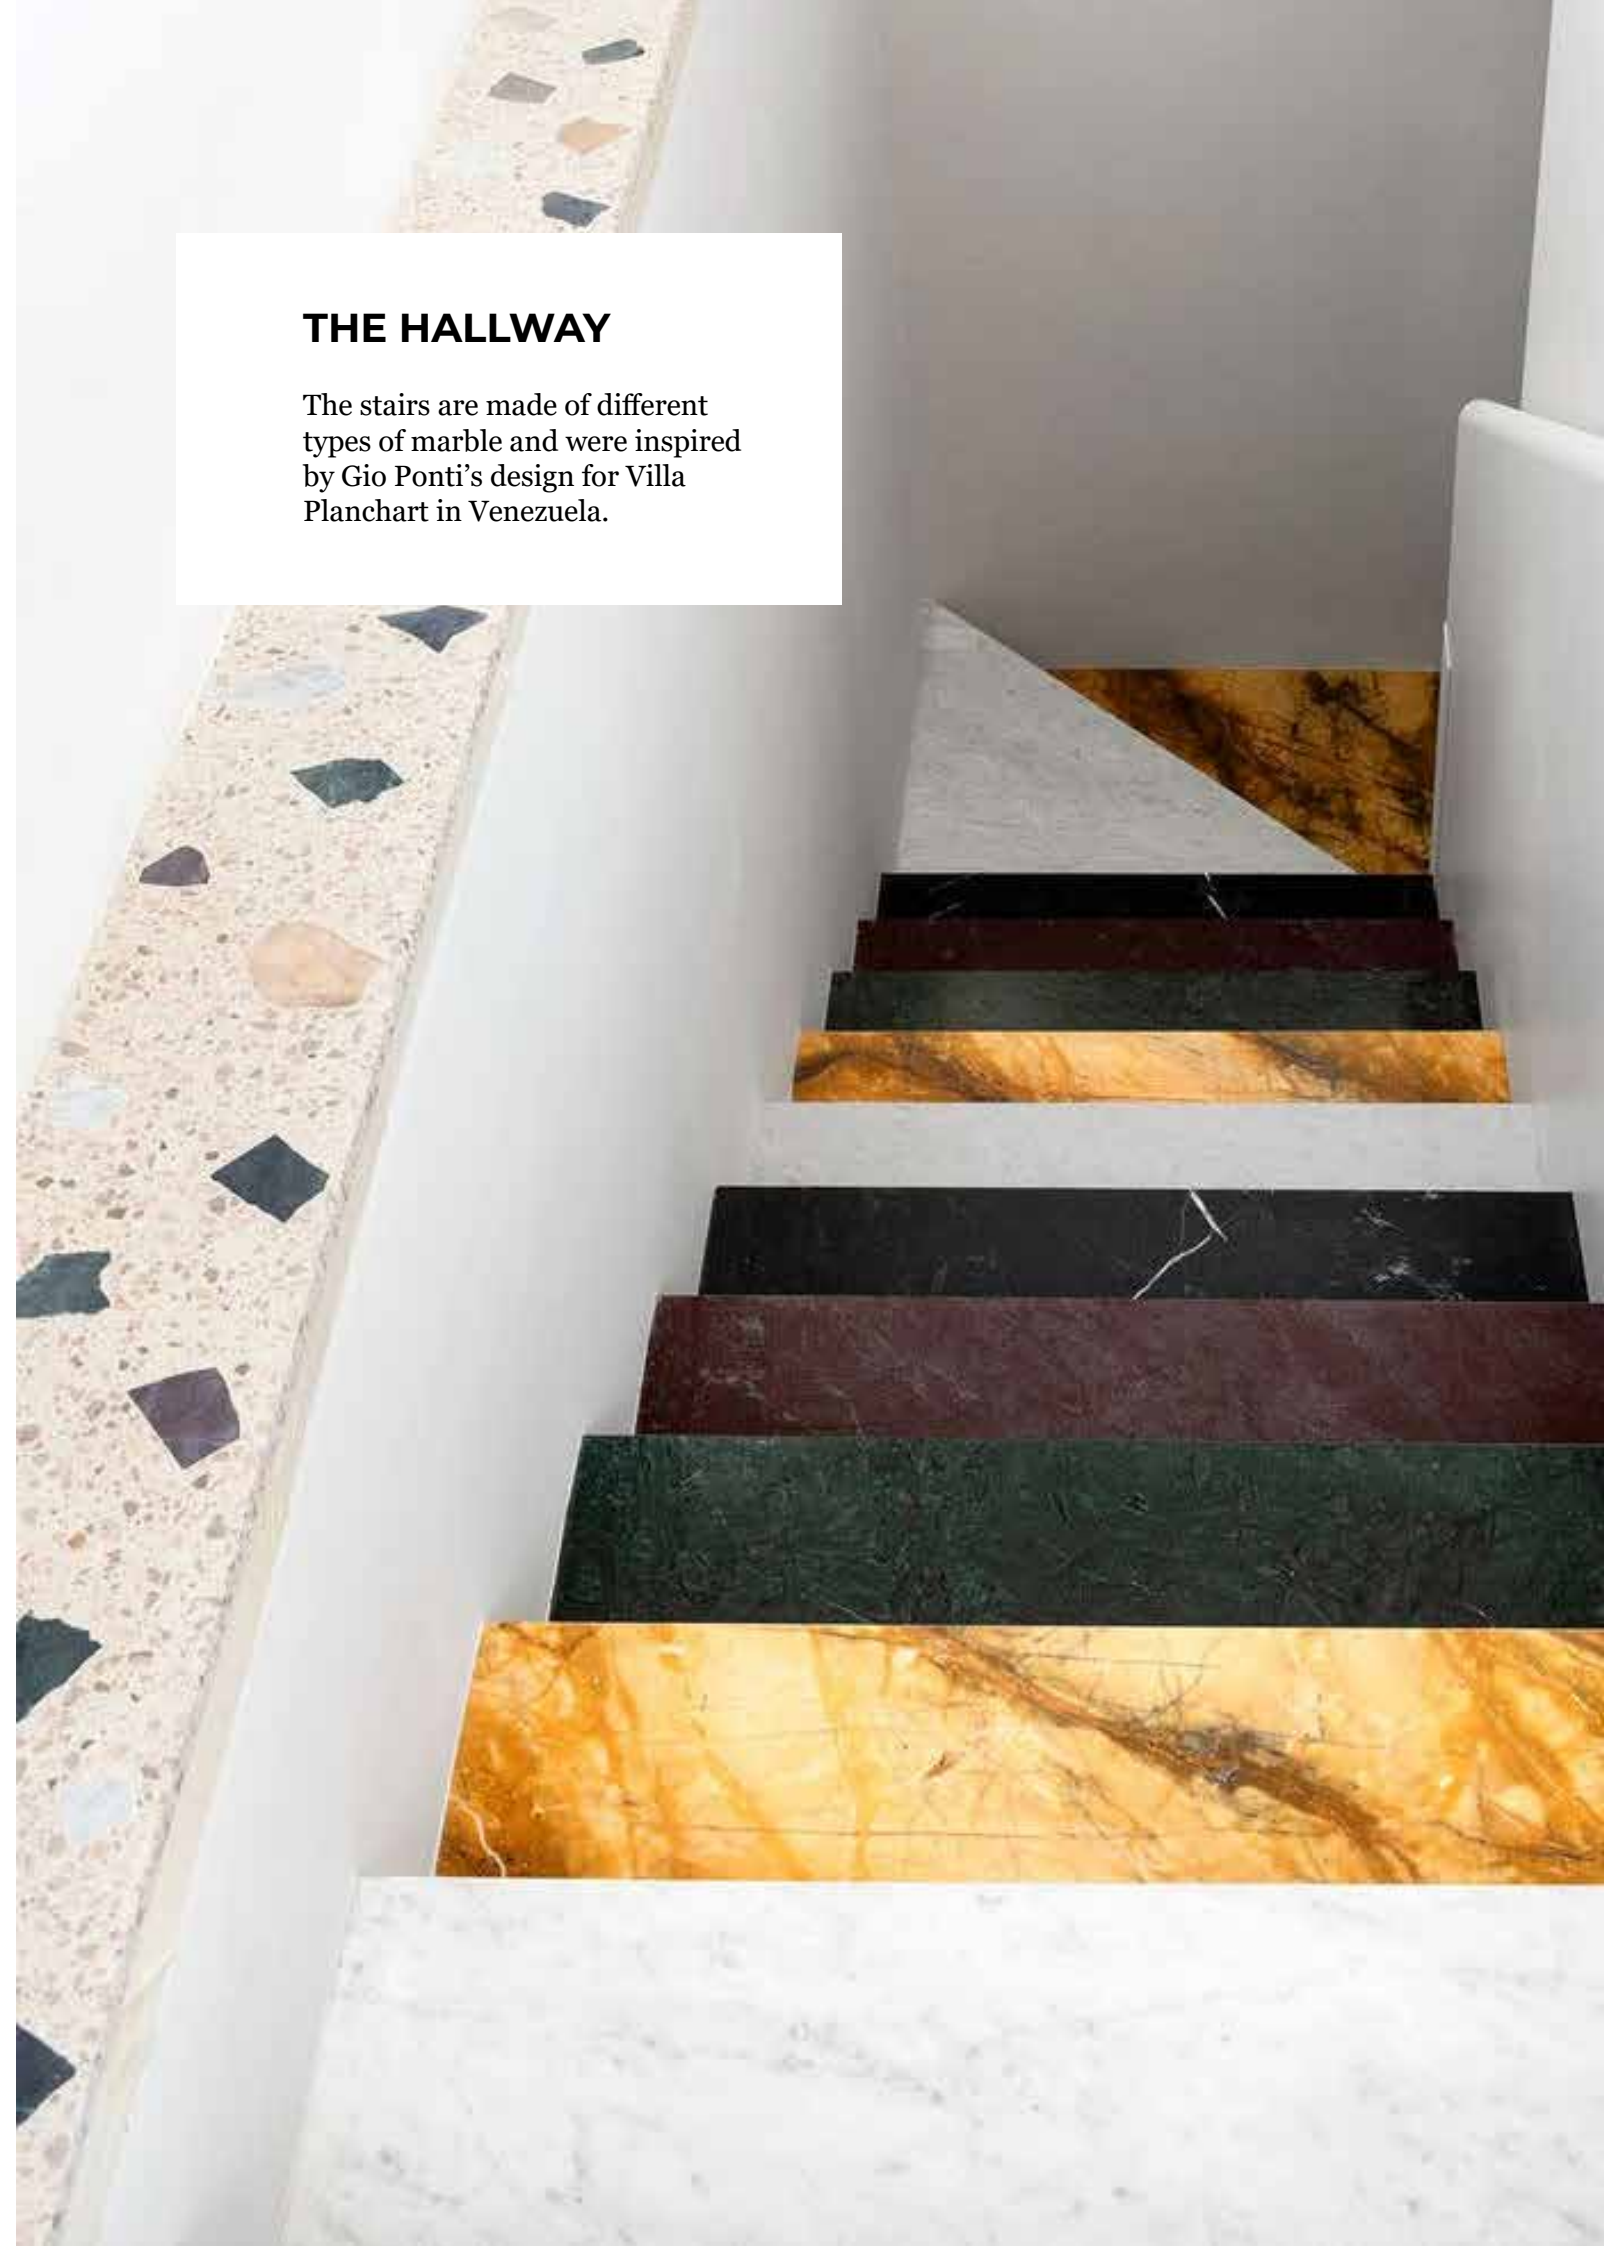

THE KITCHEN

Commercial-grade appliances and cabinetry by DeManincor. The custom majolica wall tiles—inspired by decorations at the nearby Villa Torricella—were made by Galleria Elena.

THE HALLWAY

The stairs are made of different types of marble and were inspired by Gio Ponti's design for Villa Planchart in Venezuela.

THE MAIN BEDROOM

A philodendron and a kentia plant frame the entry, where the custom concrete bed has a headboard upholstered in raffia, and the vintage lamp is by Paolo Venini and Massimo Pistilli; the marble table in the foreground is by Ettore Sottsass.

THE MAIN SHOWER

The arched shower has walls coated in resin; the vintage sconce is by Mazzega

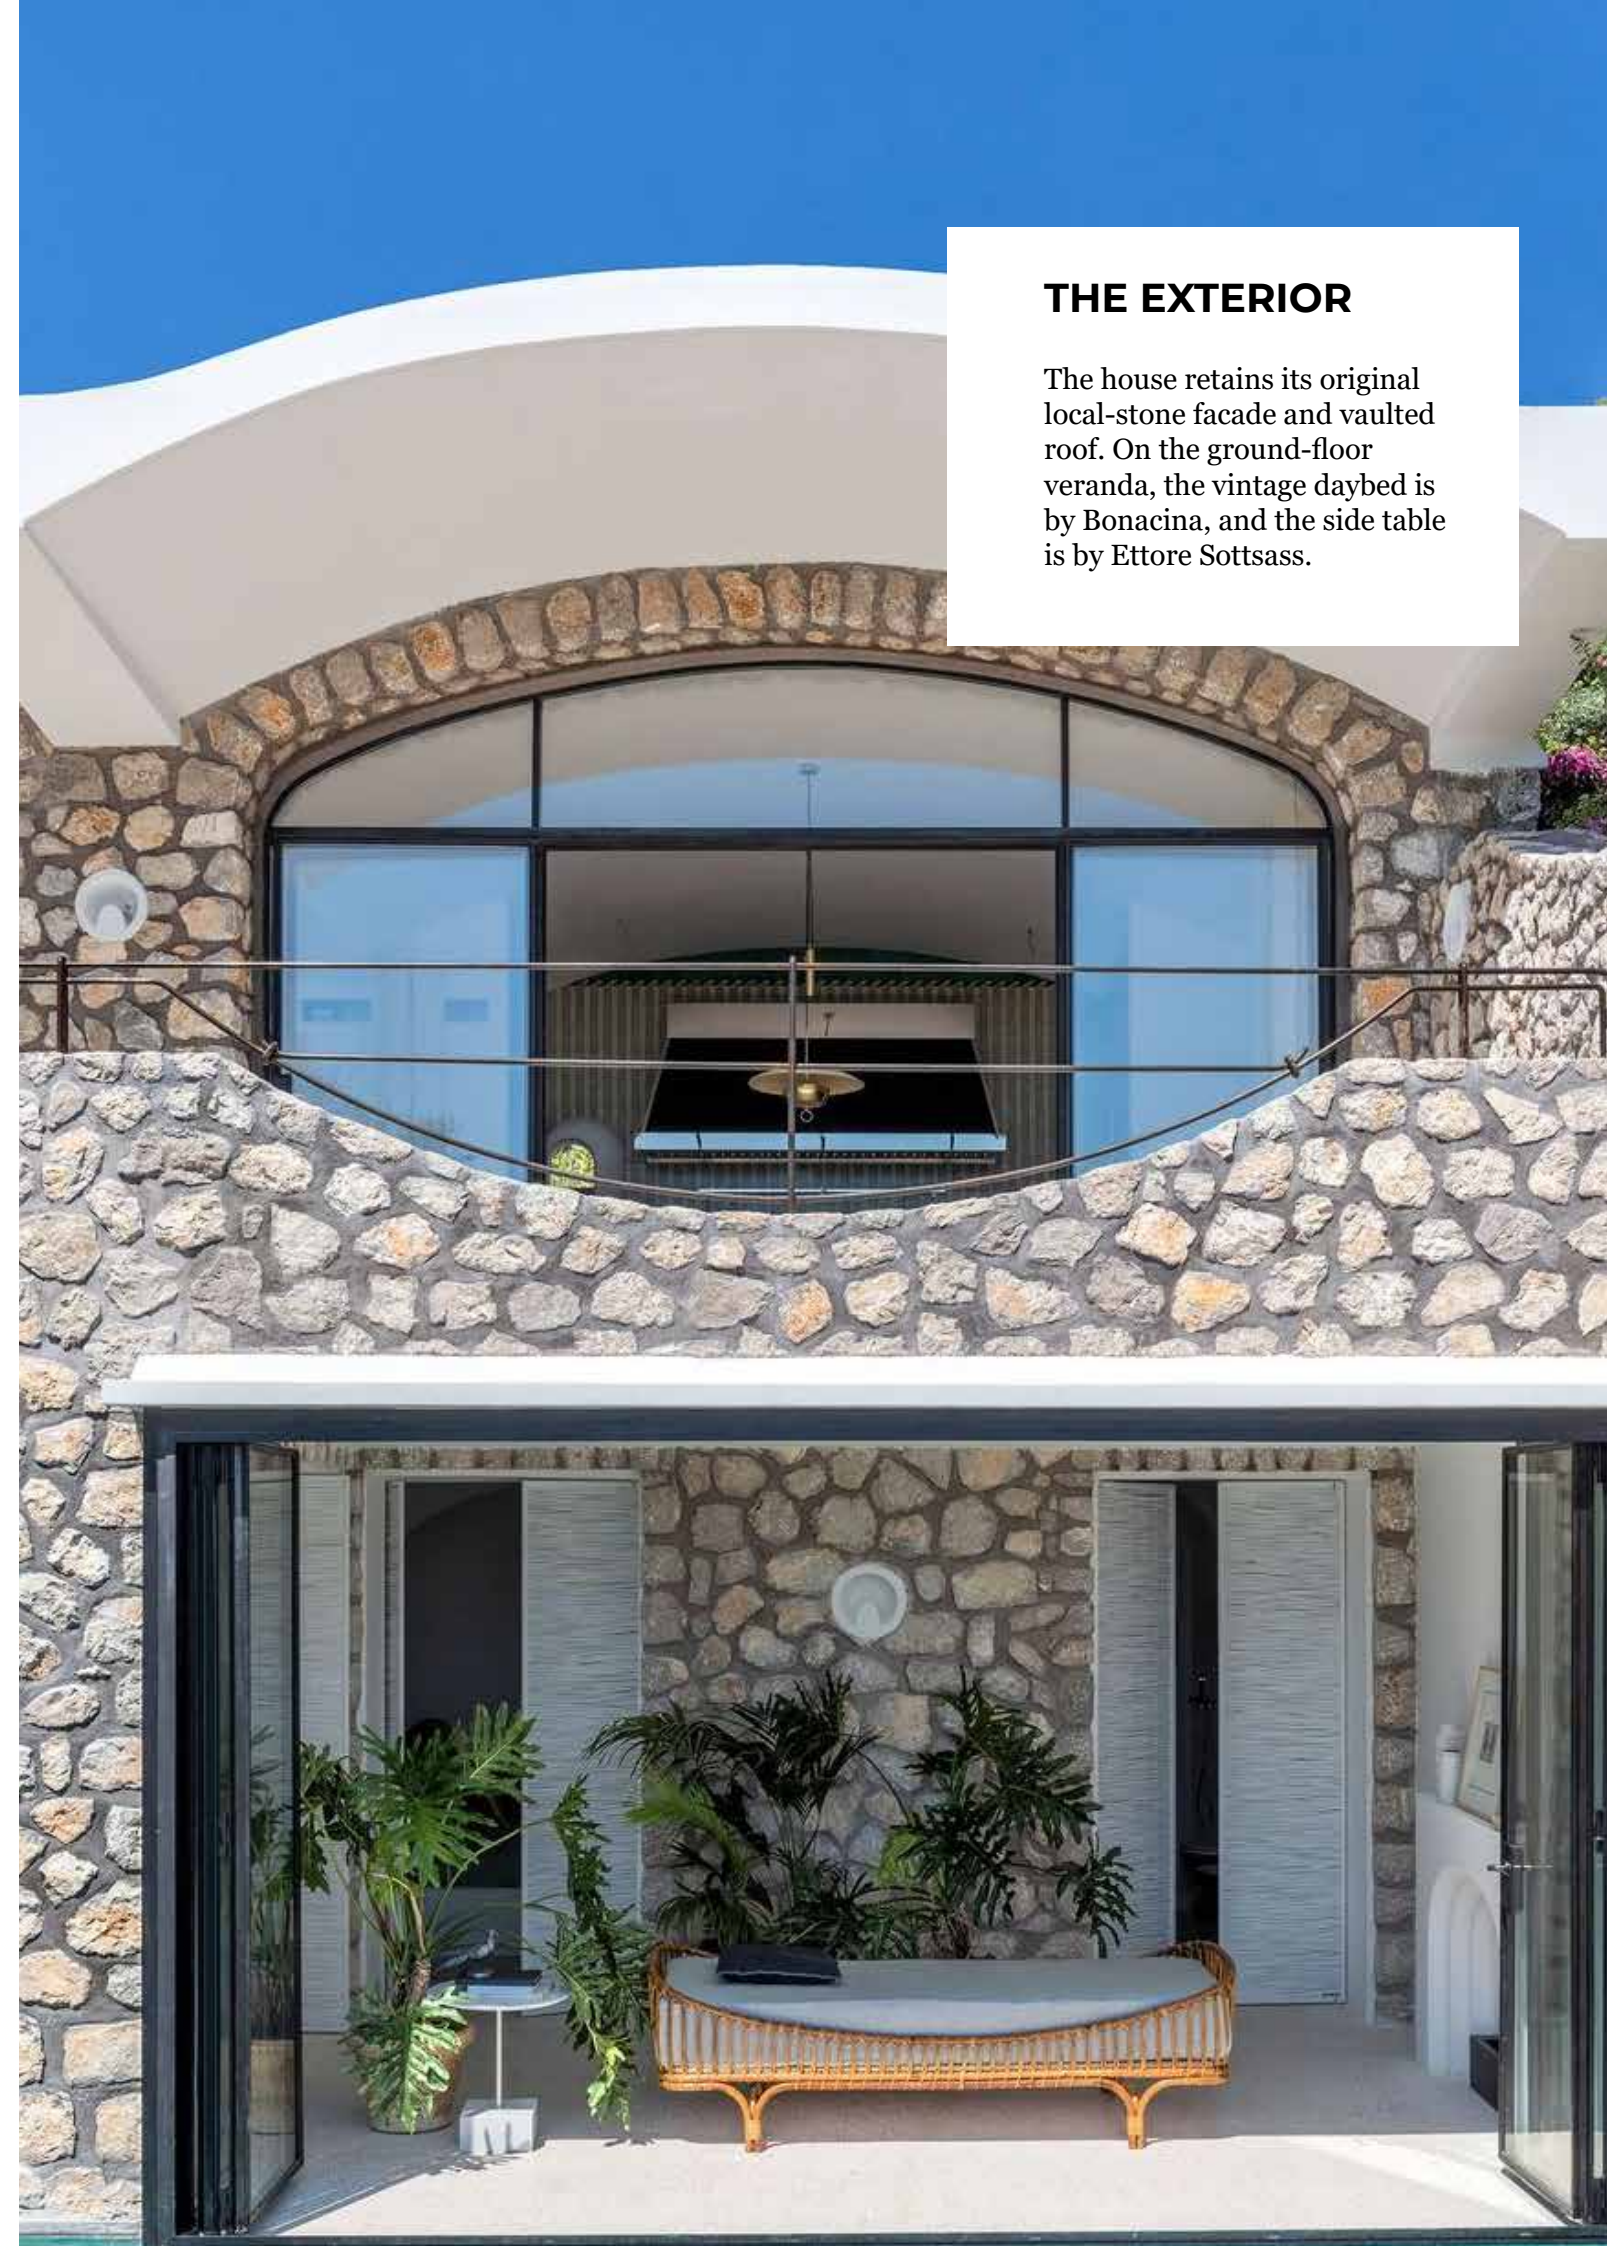

THE POWDER ROOM

The vintage sink is by Antonia Campi for Richard Ginori Laveno, and the mirror and lozenge-shaped terra-cotta tiles are custom.

THE EXTERIOR

The house retains its original local-stone facade and vaulted roof. On the ground-floor veranda, the vintage daybed is by Bonacina, and the side table is by Ettore Sottsass.
