Why do we print this book? Here are some of advantages having a printed book.

Printed books • Printed books revolutionized the world nearly 600 years ago, and since then they have influenced every part of the world, specifically in culture and science. They gave people chance to share their ideas and thoughts with the whole world.

Advantages of printed books • No need for an e-reading device • No batteries needed – the only thing you need is book and you can start enjoying whatever the book has to offer you. • Understandability – you can put marks and take notes so that you can easily understand what writer wants to say

Tangibility – choosing printed book is opting for prolonged existence and tangibility. It has ability to be seen forever on your shelf with other books. • It's for everyone – even the non-computer literate readers will find no worries with printed books when they want to read. OUTDOOR FIREPLACES

That will make you rethink your entire backyard

Is your summer party missing this alfresco essential?

Give your guests something warm and cozy to gather around this outdoor entertaining season with a fireplace that looks as good as its heat feels. Here are a few of our favorite ways to style outdoor fireplaces.

MALIBU FIREPLACE

Hollywood designer Martyn Lawrence Bullard conjured an exotic paradise for a Malibu couple, inspired by a passion for Bali. A pair of chairs by Bullard and Indonesian teak sofas surround a fire pit made from 18th-century Indian stone panels; the teak side table is Moroccan.

BOHEMIAN FIREPLACE

In the open-air dining room of Rela and Don Gleason's home in San Miguel de Allende, Mexico, the table and armoire were designed by Rela and made by local artisans. Wood piled high for the fireplace acts as an accent wall, bringing warmth into the space. The Wisteria chairs have custom leather slipcovers, and the goatskin-and-iron ceiling fixture was inspired by lighting at the Leon Trotsky museum in Mexico City.

CORAL LIMESTONE FIREPLACE

In this Miami home, the fireplace, which is original to the house, has a coral limestone surround and hearth. The side table is by Matégot.

MONTANA SKI LODGE

When a Nashville couple bought a property in a famed Montana resort, they wanted to forgo the ski-lodge aesthetic and asked designer Markham Roberts to create a fresh approach to mountain style. The outdoor deck is centered around the built-in fireplace. Sofas and chairs by Sutherland have cushions upholstered in a Perennials fabric, the bronze pendant and round cocktail table are custom designs, and the stool is African.

A COZY MONTANA GUESTHOUSE

At this cozy guesthouse in the Montana mountains, Ken Fulk created an outdoor living area suitable for even the chilliest of days. An outdoor fireplace is flanked by a pair of sheepskin-covered moose antler chairs; the table is made from an antique snowshoe, and the rug is buffalo hide.

LIMESTONE FIREPLACE

The covered porch of an Idaho home is paved in gray sandstone tiles and features a driftwood chandelier from Mecox Gardens and a limestone fireplace with built-in seating.

OPEN FIRE PIT

The fire pit on the terrace of this Amagansett home is by Extremis. The chairs are by Gallant & Jones, and the vintage lantern is from Morocco.

MINIMAL OUTDOOR FIREPLACE

In a Los Angeles farmhouse, the custom concrete sofas on a screened porch with a low and wide fireplace are topped with Brenda Antin pillows, the 1990 Mats Theselius chair is Swedish, the 1953 Bigfoot cocktail table is by Paul Frank, and the wall is clad in reclaimed farmhouse boards.

POURED CONCRETE FIREPLACE

The outdoor dining area of an East Coast vacation home features a poured concrete fireplace, Siesta furniture by DelGreco & Company, and ceramic garden stools by Mecox Gardens.

BONFIRE PIT

At actress Courteney Cox's Malibu home, a custom-made banquette surrounds a teak-and-steel lava-rock fire pit.

ROUNDED FIRE PIT

In TV producer Jamie Tarses' Hollywood Hills home, designed by Pamela Shamshiri of Commune Design, the outdoor area's fire pit is by Plain Air. The seat cushions are of a Donghia fabric and the metal chairs are vintage.

SLOPED FIREPLACE

The courtyard in this Hollywood home features a fireplace with a 17th-century armorial cartouche found at Bonhams. The teak cocktail table is by Holly Hunt and the flooring is of reclaimed terra-cotta tiles.

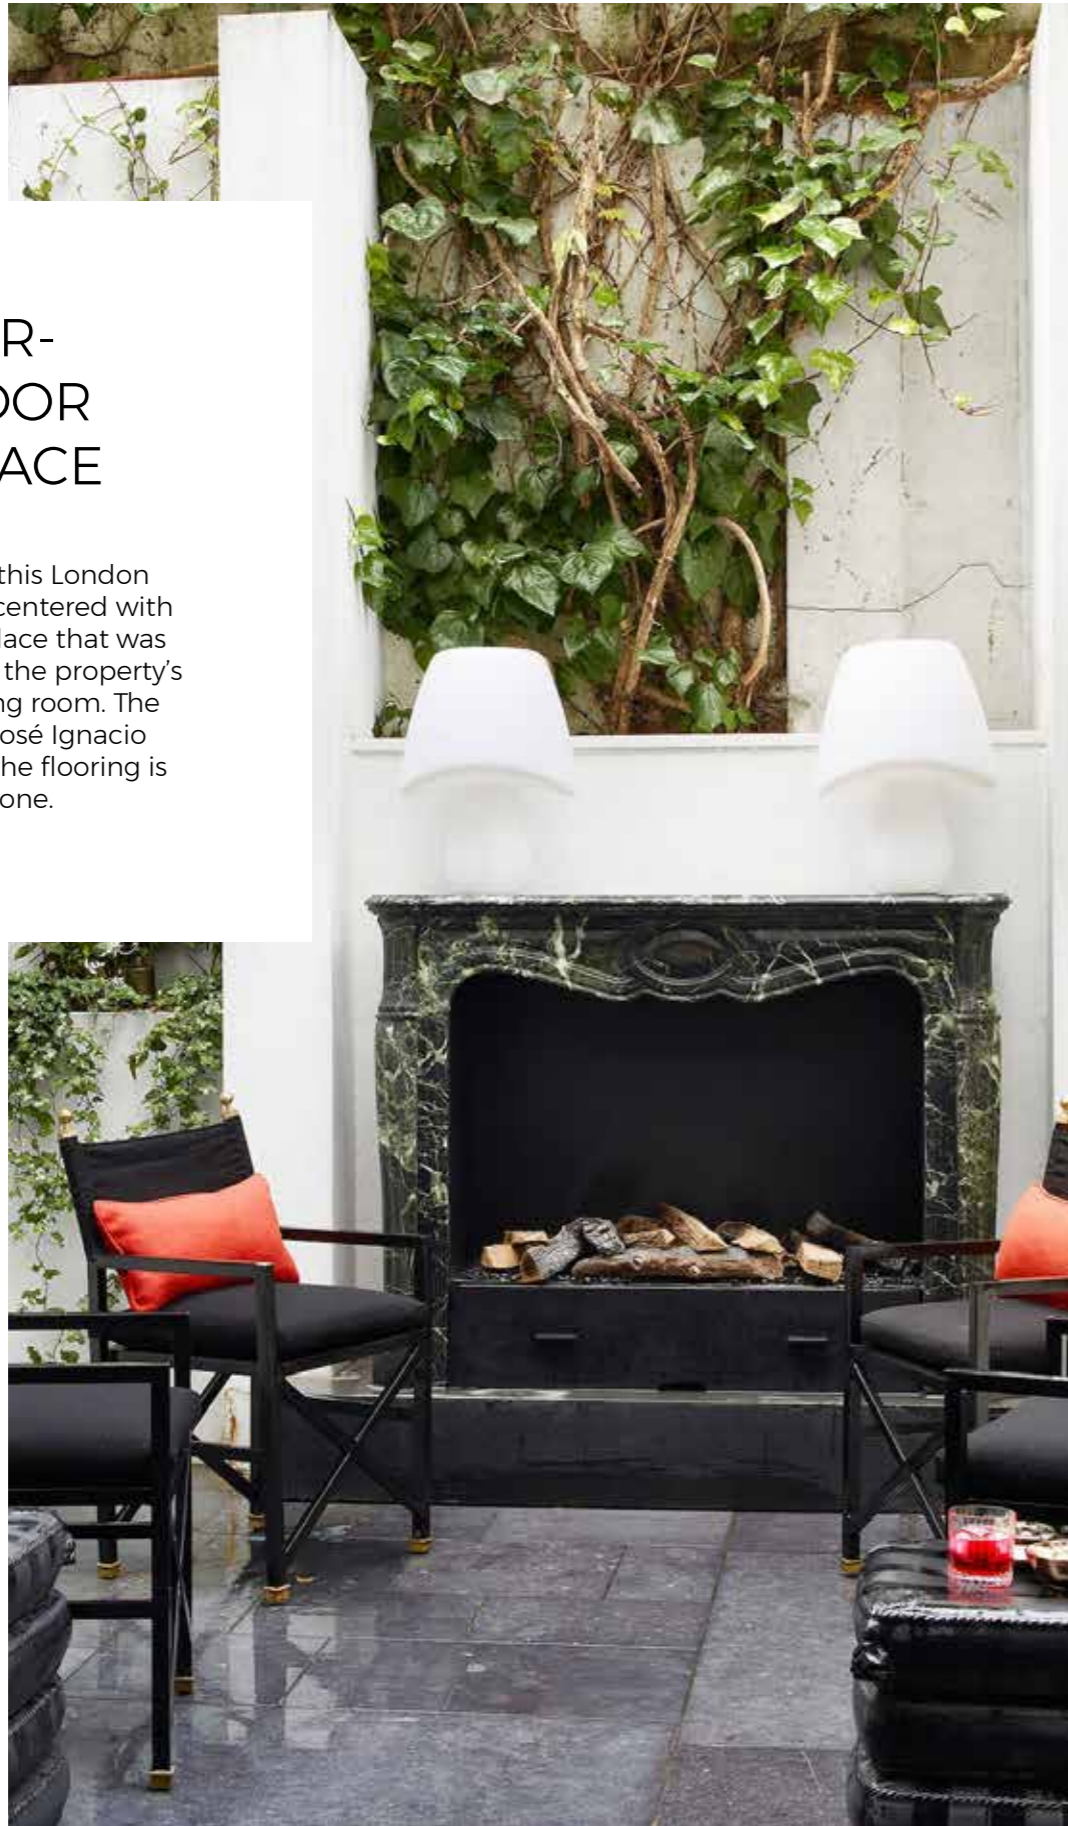

SNOW-COVERED FIREPLACE

On the deck of a Utah home belonging to fashion executive Buffy Birrittella, locally made chairs, with denim cushions by Ralph Lauren Home, are situated near a charming stone fireplace. The table is covered with a Mali sarong and a Mexican serape.

INDOOR- OUTDOOR FIREPLACE

The terrace of this London townhouse is centered with a marble fireplace that was salvaged from the property's original drawing room. The lamps are by José Ignacio Baluster, and the flooring is Belgian bluestone.

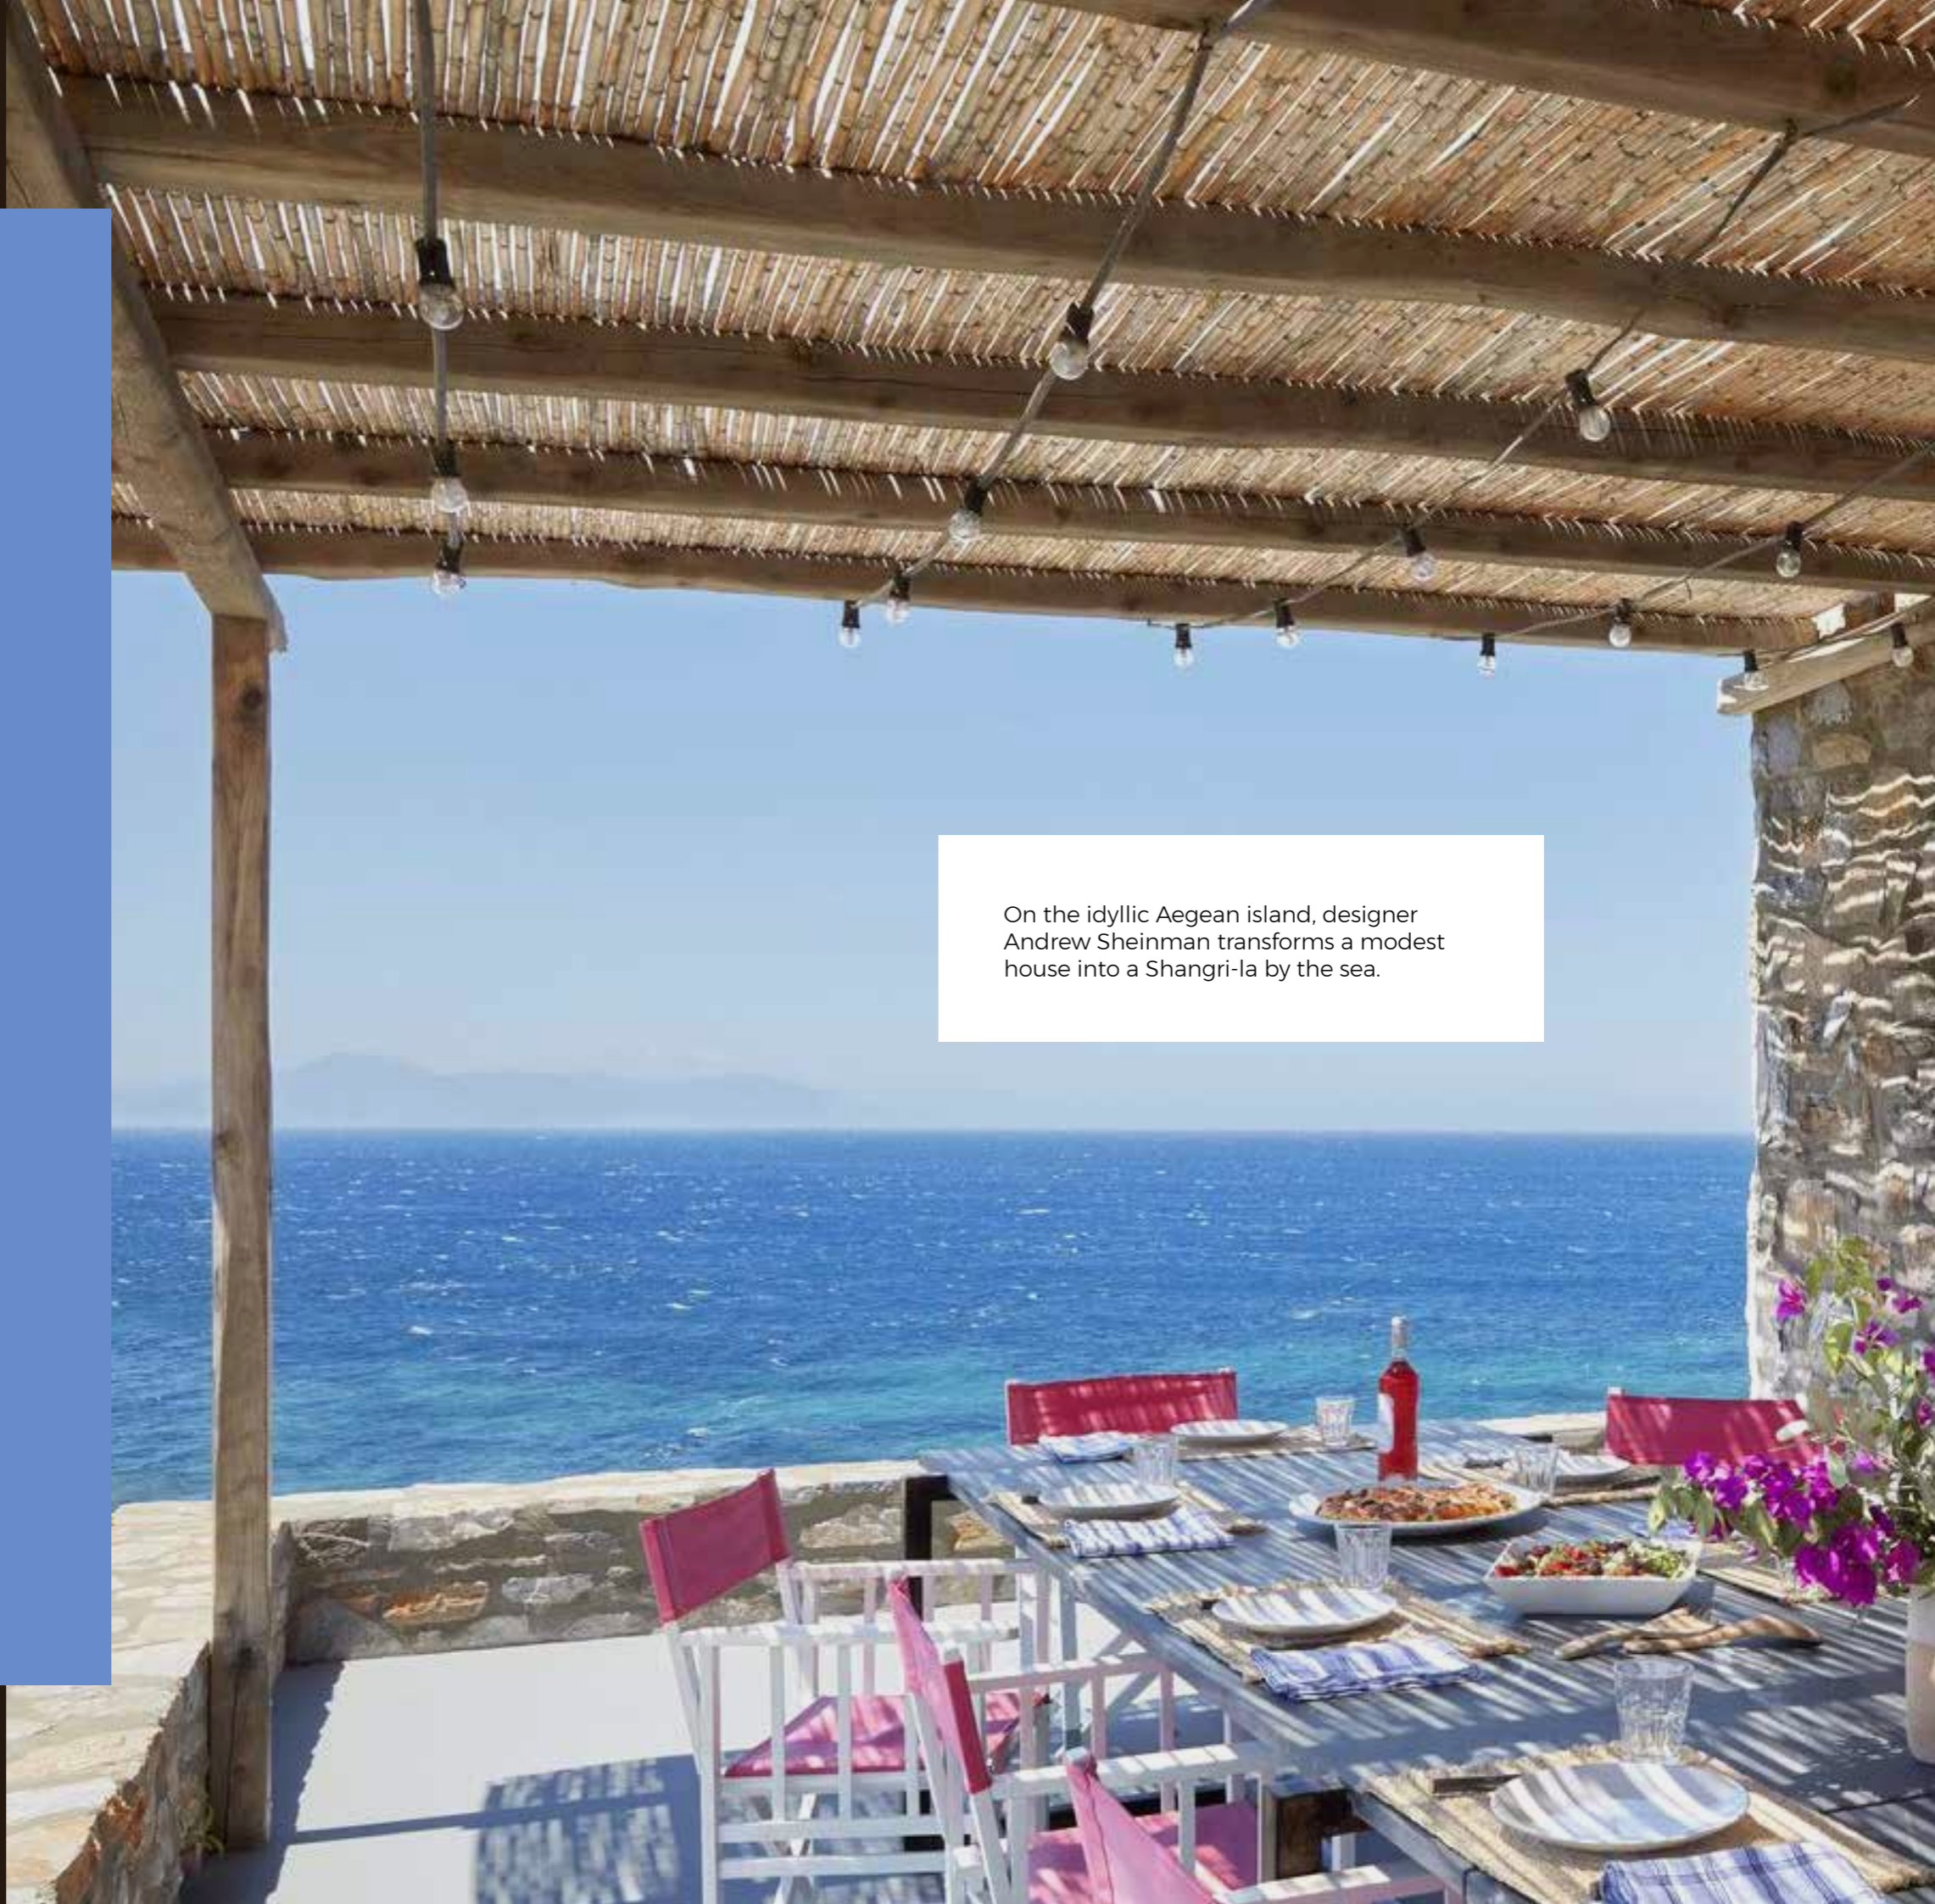

COZY FIREPLACE

In designer Alison Palevsky's Pacific Palisades home, the terrace's sofas and cocktail table, by Link Outdoor, surround a cozy fireplace. The light fixture is from the 1950s.

A MODERN TAKE ON GREEK ISLAND LIVING IN SERIFOS

On the idyllic Aegean island, designer Andrew Sheinman transforms a modest house into a Shangri-la by the sea.

In trade and conquest, religion and nutrition, life in Greece has long emerged from the sea. It seems fitting, then, that it was from the Aegean that I first set eyes upon the humble one-room house on Serifos that I would end up buying and transforming into a retreat for my family.

My wife, Helen, and I had been vacationing in the Cyclades for many years and had fallen in love with Serifos, home to a creative community of artists and writers. That summer, we were renting an apartment in Chora, the ancient fortified town built to repel marauding pirates in medieval times.

One day, we chartered a yacht and set sail around the island. Squinting in the midday sun, I noticed the unassuming structure on a rise above the water. A grove of silver-leaved olive trees dappled sunlight onto the soil below. A stone path meandered down from the house to a pristine stretch of coastline, past prickly pears, fig trees, and bougainvillea bursting from the earthen palette.

The house, which overlooks the Aegean Sea, is surrounded by terraced gardens and groves of olive, lemon, and fig trees.

The living room's cocktail table and banquette are custom, and the striped pillows are in a Les Toiles du Soleil fabric. The Queen Elizabeth II print is by Andy Warhol.

I resolved to make this lovely cove into a sanctuary for my family and friends. The timing was right. My daughters, Alexia and Isabel, were immersed in their working lives. My interior design firm, Pembroke & Ives, was operating at full tilt on projects around the world. We were eager to build a getaway for ourselves, a respite from all of our frenzied lives back in Manhattan.

I have always loved Greece. My first trip was in the 1970s, as a 13-year-old from England, when a friend invited me to sail around the Aegean with his family. Later, I married Helen Tsanos—a beautiful Greek-Cypriot writer, chef, and yoga instructor.

“now the stars aligned for me to take on this most personal of projects.”

The property was owned by an Athenian couple who had built the house in the early 1990s. With the assurance that we would nurture the land and keep the original structure at the heart of any additions, they agreed to sell it to us in 2005. In expanding the architecture, we were inspired by the traditional Cycladic design vernacular, from the whitewashed walls to the raw-stone exterior that blends into the landscape.

Custom furnishings create a seating area in the outdoor lounge.

The kitchen's custom island is in stainless steel, the sinks and fittings are by Marcel Wanders for Boffi, and the wall cabinets, counters, and backsplash are in Carrara marble. The ceiling is clad in bamboo and walnut, and the light is custom.

Like most traditional Greek dwellings, this home is designed to draw guests outdoors. A series of sundecks and terraces fan out organically from the structure. They are the scene of many hours of quiet reading, napping, yoga, and sunbathing.

Indoors, the kitchen is our center of gravity. Though stainless steel, Carrara marble, glass fixtures, and a customized Dutch stove lend an air of refinement to the space, it is designed to be a workhorse. My wife—whose cookbook-cum-memoir, Love, Laughter and Lunch, is filled with delicious Greek recipes—can often be found preparing feasts that are then served on the outdoor dining patio. A wood-burning oven bakes pizzas garnished with olive oil from our own grove, and if we wake up in time to meet the boats, we'll enjoy a lunch of freshly caught fish roasted in salt.

Serifos was once mined for magnetic iron ore. According to folk belief, this accounts for the island's allure among artists and seekers. Superstition aside, the house is indeed my family's lodestar, keeping us connected with the elements, our senses, and one another, and always pointing us in the right direction.

The beds in the guest room are covered with blankets by Andrianna Shamaris and draped with mosquito netting. The curtains are of a custom fabric edged with pom-poms.

At night, the only lights visible are those of cars winding along mountain roads on the distant island of Sifnos, or a passing ferry gliding to and from the nearby port. Clocks are scarce, so the ferries are our only indicators of the time of day. That and meals, of course.
